PRACTICAL TOOLS FOR A MORE ACCESSIBLE CHURCH

Disabilities can create barriers that keep families from participating fully in worship, religious education, and parish life. In this interactive workshop, we will explore practical approaches that make classes, services, and community activities more accessible, welcoming, and inclusive.

Together, we will identify ways to support families facing complex challenges so that the Church can more fully reflect the iconic community shown in The Hospitality of Abraham.

ABOUT SUMMER KINARD

Summer Kinard is a Greek Orthodox disability theologian. She, her husband Andrew, and their five children are autistic; some of their children have high autistic support needs. Her work focuses on accessible church education and full participation in the life of the Church.
